And, it's almost over. Almost over? Well, anyway, school will soon be over and we will face whatever it is that college seniors face when they get out. After years of school, we will be finished except for those of us who have chosen to go on to a higher degree. In the year of being a senior, we relive our whole school life again — waiting for recess; hating the kid that sat behind you and kicked the books out of your desk, or pulled at your sweater until it looked liked it belonged to your older brother; the bully in the class, who always had to make you trip in front of all the girls; the teacher who picked on you; the failed test that was all because she snuck a tricky question in; sitting in the movies, one seat apart from the person you liked, and being so interested in the movie, and then not being able to even remember the name of the movie; or having such a good time at the dance, laughing and talking to all of your friends and wishing all the time he or she would come over and just say hello; the football games where you screamed so much you lost your voice, or got so cold you thought you'd never get warm; or the "dirty dealings" with the competition school, painting their sidewalk your school colors, or stealing their mascot; the crying, hair pulling, and absolute indecision about where to go to college and what to take when you get there; the scary feeling you got when your parents drove off and left you alone at Madison; the new friends, good friends, new experiences, and new ideas. Somehow, we all made it through the lonely weekends, all night study sessions, acceptance of lower grades and learning to work harder; the En-thoozes; the Thursday nights at the student union; the coffee houses; Homecomings; concerts; being treated as an equal by your professors and obtaining the status of Mr., Miss, or Mrs.; being involved with the college and learning about people. Life is a learning experience and for us, the Senior class, our education has ended and begun at the same time. We do not have the answers, but then, who does? We experience life as we live it.

Alpha Phi Omega is an organization that provides service activities for national, community, college, and fraternal benefit. It is based on the Greek system, having the traditional pledge period and membership, and is open only to males with a willingness to work. Each year they have at least four projects, one of these being of major importance each semester. They have sponsored the Bike-a-Thon for the American Cancer Society, worked with the local Salvation Army at Christmas, and provided services such as library book-lifts for the students. They also got involved with other Greek organizations in order to achieve better working relations between the different groups.

Kappa Sigma

Kappa Sigma is one of the oldest and largest fraternities. Founded at the University of Virginia in 1869, it has more than 175 chapters and colonies. National Headquarters in Charlottesville is only an hour's drive away. Lambda Sigma chapter, an outgrowth of the old KEG local fraternity, celebrated its first birthday on February 28th. The Brothers have won first prize in the Homecoming Parade twice in the past three years, are strong in athletics, and stand second in grade point average. They and The Stardusters are a friendly, outgoing group; they went out into the cold to have this picture taken.

ORGANIZATIONS

WMRA

On November 12, 1975, WMRA changed from a 10-watt campus radio station to a professional 50,000-watt radio station serving the Shenandoah Valley. Then, as now, WMRA's primary purpose has been to provide extensive hands-on, practical radio experience for students in the Communication Arts department, whose concentrations are in the area of radio, television, and film. There, students can learn about all phases of radiowork, in a well-supervised environment run by five full-time professional staff members. From writing copy, to reporting news, to hosting a live music program, students can find their niche in the world of radio, and receive valuable training for the future.

ALPHA BETA ALPHA

As an open organization for all those interested in library science, Alpha Beta Alpha, provides the opportunity for those interested in the library science field to expand their career goals. The Madison chapter, Alpha Alpha, provided programs by which this could be achieved. Included in their activities were reading programs centered around children's literature and best-selling novels. In addition, the club has sponsored speakers to provide the club members with information on opportunities in the library science field. During the spring semester, a district meeting of Alpha Beta Alpha was sponsored by the Madison chapter to provide the members a chance to exchange ideas with other members.

ALPHA EPSILON RHO

Alpha Epsilon Rho, the honorary broadcasting society, is open to anyone active in broadcasting with a 3.0 average in their broadcasting courses as well as a 2.0 over-all average. The society provides the opportunity for its members to get together and meet others in broadcasting — both fellow students and professionals. This year they sponsored movies and dances to raise money to bring in various speakers. In addition, they hosted the annual regional convention which was attended by three regional chapters.

BLACK STUDENT ALLIANCE

To Articulate the problems of black students at Madison College, to establish communication with the black community and to foster black awareness among themselves and the community as a whole are among the goals stated in the constitution of the Black Student Alliance. To attain these goals the organization sponsored various programs throughout the year. Among these were, Black History Week in recognition of the many achievements of black individuals, and a choral group which gave medley performances in the Harrisonburg area. Perhaps best known was the radio show, "Ebony in Perspective" on WMRA as a weekly broadcasted spot, providing current and historical black cultural information. A useful, concerned group, the Black Student Alliance worked on promoting interest and involvement in campus activities.

1977 Bluestone Staff

The purpose of the Bluestone is that of any yearbook; except that this one is for Madison College — hopefully James Madison University soon. The Bluestone tries to change and grow with the school. Sometimes we succeed, sometimes we fail. We all have different preferences and perhaps this is why the book doesn't appeal to everyone and perhaps why programs offered here at school vary so. We hope you find something you like and some things you don't like. I hope you find something to remember Madison College for.

The Breeze

Twenty-five years ago The Breeze published a two-page paper announcing that there would be no news because students and administrators would not cooperate. "Almost every club has a reporter," the front page editorial stated, "but many of them aren't doing their jobs." In subsequent years, a regular newspaper evolved. This year The Breeze underwent a year of expansion as a concentrated effort by the staff met fruition in numerous innovations. The size of the paper nearly doubled over the previous year, and The Breeze successfully published twice a week. A hard core staff, most of whom were or would be actively involved in professional journalism, turned an award-winning newspaper into what many regarded as "the best college newspaper in Virginia." In addition to the staff, The Breeze relied on many practicum students and volunteers who not only helped report the news, but who also aided in the behind the scenes tasks that made the paper work. The work of staff and students is finally realized by the students, when the paper hits the stands. And what faculty and students read is the only collegiate newspaper in Virginia published twice a week, the Virginia collegiate newspaper with the most comprehensive coverage, and a nationally recognized newspaper, winner of the Columbia Journalism School medalist award for excellence.

Exactly what the name implies, the Biological Interest Organization consists of any individual interested in the study of biology, and does not require the members to be biology majors. Its major concern being to promote an interest in biology, the club has sponsored such activities as speakers on biological and cultural science topics, plant sales, and field trips.

CCM offers an opportunity for Catholic students to express and share their faith with one another and with the surrounding community. Through CCM, students offered opportunities of worship, prayer, and social ministries to a nursing home, a prison road camp, and a home for the physically handicapped, plus social activities.

Catholic Campus Ministry

CAMPUS PROGRAM BOARD

The Campus Program Board is responsible for programming the majority of the entertainment here at Madison. It is formed of voluntary student committees — movies, travel, publicity, house, tickets, special events, and coffeehouses — that jointly plan and execute the events. It is governed by the executive board, which is made up of the chairmen of the committees. They constantly strive to program as much variety as possible that appeals to the majority of the students. This year they presented AWB, Tommy, The Exorcist, Dave Brubeck, One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest, and student coffeehouses. One of the CPB's most noted contributions of the year was the addition of the large TV in the Warren Campus Center.

Fourth Row — Regina Rich, Sec.; Chuck Berlin, Pres.; Jenny Foreman, Vice-Pres.

As one of Madison's most active organizations, Circle K sponsored a variety of events throughout the year which greatly benefited Madison College and the Harrisonburg community. Club members assisted the staff at the Harrisonburg SPCA, sponsored a Halloween Haunted House to benefit M.S., worked with patients at local nursing homes, and collected food baskets for local needy families. Circle K worked with children through the Salvation Army and junior high school Builders club — a group organized by Circle K. Other activities included registering people for body-organ donor programs and sponsoring student health screening clinics. Through its various projects, Circle K prepares its members for a lifetime commitment to community involvement.

Chemical Society

The Chemical Society, affiliated with the American Chemical Society, affords students of chemistry and other related disciplines an opportunity to become better acquainted, to obtain experience in preparing and presenting seminars of technical matter, to provide association with professional organizations, industries, academia, and to create an awareness of the responsibilities and challenges of today's chemist.

The Council for Exceptional Children is a national organization, whose primary purpose is to promote the welfare and education of exceptional children — both gifted and handicapped. Providing as much practical experience as is possible, each year the CEC sponsors activities such as Halloween parties, The Special Olympics; as well as an Annual Mini Convention with work-shops and panel discussions for the members. This year they also sponsored an Exceptional Child Week.

Madison Dance Theatre is primarily an undergraduate company of students who perform in either the Folk or Modern Ensembles or work with technical dance theatre. Each Ensemble produces a campus concert and accepts several engagements each semester in communities, schools, and colleges throughout Virginia. This year Madison Dance Theatre was asked to perform in the Richmond Invitational Dance Concert, give a folk dance concert in Roanoke, and dance in the Page County Historical Association's Pageant, Oh Shenandoah. Both Ensembles participated in the Williamsburg Bicentennial Costume Ball, the Madison Fine Arts Festival, and went to schools to give assembly programs and classes. As a result of the Israeli Dance Festival Concert this fall, members of the Folk Ensemble were invited to be guests of the Israeli Embassy while they were in Washington, D.C. to perform in the Fifth Annual Israeli Folk Dance Festival. MDT helps to host dance companies who come to the Madison College campus. The Ririe-Woodbury Dance Company from Salt Lake City and the 5 by 2 Dance Company were highlights of the total campus dance calendar this year. Guys & Dolls

Bill Molyneux came to Madison College Theatre by way of the Broadway stage, network television, and the motion picture industry. Bearing the title of “guest scene designer,” Molyneux came to MCT to work side by side with theatre students on the season’s first production: The Importance of Being Earnest. Throughout a two week construction period, aspiring scenic artists were treated to many professional insights from a man who has served as art director and scenic designer for the N.B.C. Opera Series, Your Hit Parade, and the Heritage Theatre at the University of Virginia.

This famous turn-of-the-century farce represents a pinnacle of Victorian comedy because it mocks so outrageously the very society that spawned it. The cast brought Wilde's hilarious epigrams and double-dealing characters to life within a set designed by guest artist Bill Molyneux.

 Drum Major — Curtis Hansen

Georg Buchner's "Woyzeck," written two months before his death in 1837, was left unfinished. The manuscript contained indications for twenty-seven scenes, but no order was noted and each scene seems to stand apart, a unit by itself. Madison College Theatre attempted to deal with the story of Woyzeck rather than Buchner's script since only third hand translations of his works and ideas are available. The actors and director, Allen Lyndrup, took freedom with the scenes to make them fit their concept of the story. Buchner suggested songs in many scenes; they took his fragments of lyrics, extended them, and set them to music. Through discussion, improvisation, and acting exercises the cast derived a unique production for themselves and their audiences.

STUDENT ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

Their biggest responsibility is Homecoming; the theme, the parade, the Ms. Madison contest, the half-time show, dorm displays, and all the advertising behind it. Everything, but the scheduling of the concert, is handled by the Student Alumni Association. And when it is all over, they are still not done because during the rest of the year the SAA gives daily tours of the campus to perspective students, arranges senior seminars, compiles a Senior information booklet, and assists the Placement Office in running Career Day. As a service organization dedicated to assistance of the student body, projects are developed continuously around this ideal.

As stated by President Michael Anestos, the keynote of this year's Student Government Association was "to rock the boat within the system." Learning from our militant predecessors of the early seventies that all out radicalism is not worthwhile, yet fully realizing the student government is too often just a rubber stamp for the administration, the S.G.A. seized its power actively to renovate the current system of student services rather than overthrow it. The S.G.A. conducted its business under the creed of providing for the students what they deserve for their money, as a corporation provides for its stockholders. One project championed this year was a course by course evaluation published for student use. Some mistakes were made, but a strong and public advocate tradition was born, and it is the hope of this year's Student Government Association that this tradition will continue in years to come.

Within that capacity, it has the power to individually sponsor fund-raising drives, social events, student activities, etc., along with the prerogative to introduce resolutions before Senate.

Organized to advocate student rights, their main duties include advising students on judicial violations concerning the Honor Council and, if necessary, defending students at hearings. The Blomquist to all together
Blomquist

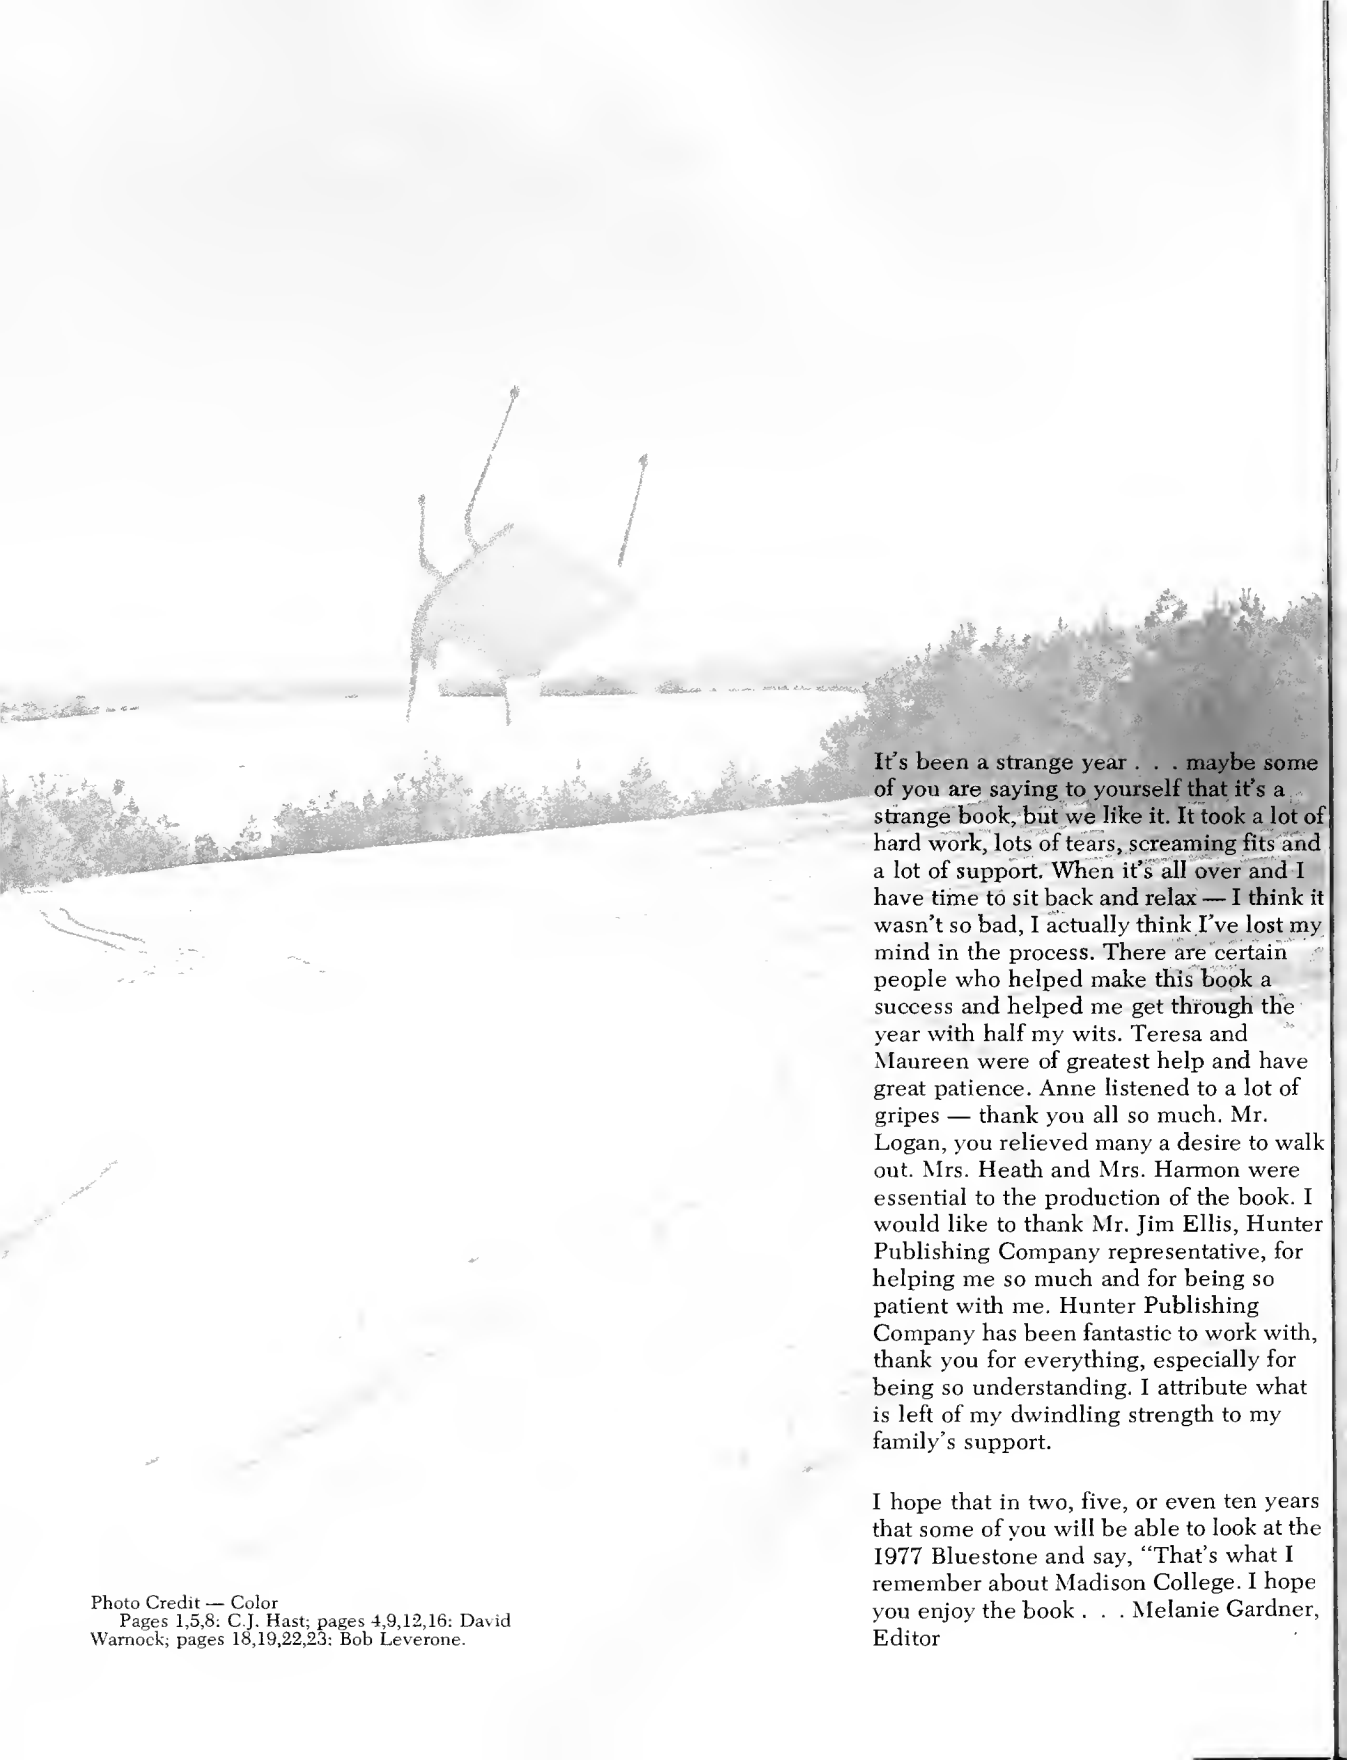

It's been a strange year . . . maybe some of you are saying to yourself that it's a strange book, but we like it. It took a lot of hard work, lots of tears, screaming fits and a lot of support. When it's all over and I have time to sit back and relax — I think it wasn't so bad, I actually think I've lost my mind in the process. There are certain people who helped make this book a success and helped me get through the year with half my wits. Teresa and Maureen were of greatest help and have great patience. Anne listened to a lot of gripes — thank you all so much. Mr. Logan, you relieved many a desire to walk out. Mrs. Heath and Mrs. Harmon were essential to the production of the book. I would like to thank Mr. Jim Ellis, Hunter Publishing Company representative, for helping me so much and for being so patient with me. Hunter Publishing Company has been fantastic to work with, thank you for everything, especially for being so understanding. I attribute what is left of my dwindling strength to my family's support.

I hope that in two, five, or even ten years that some of you will be able to look at the 1977 Bluestone and say, "That's what I remember about Madison College. I hope you enjoy the book . . . Melanie Gardner, Editor
